Announce New Registration Plan For REA Program

Those who have previously attended Coast Electric's big meetings will remember the time and effort that was spent in registering at each booth so as to be eligible for that booth's prize. This year, one central registration booth, inside the gym, will register everyone attending, members and non-members, adults and children and from these registrations, drawings for all booth-prizes will be made.

The one registration instead of 15 separate registrations at the 15 booths, will allow everyone to spend more time in visiting the booths and really enjoying the exhibit.

Members only will be eligible for the prizes that Coast Electric is offering and they will register for these at the time they receive their ballot, their membership identification and their registration gift. Members too will register inside the gym for the booth prizes.

checked out. These books cover various subjects and should prove to be entertaining, as well as informative. Some of these books were purchased by the PTA to be used primarily by the sixth through the eighth grades. Because the sixth grade has never before had the privilege of checking out library books, it was given first chance and all books were taken.

Homecoming Day will be Friday, November 14, with Bay High's football team meeting Lucedale. The Homecoming dance will be held at the Youth Center, Friday evening immediately following the game.

The Homecoming Queen from Bay High will be Miss Shirley Davis with Donald Peterson acting as Captain of the team, Maids and their escorts will be as follows: seniors, Norma Johnson, Robert Miller; juniors, Lioa Price, Malcolm Moreau; sophomores, Carol Courge, Kent Sallier; freshmen, Lydia Breath, Hugo Favre.

PTA Meets; Emphasizes Educational Features

The Bay High P-T-A. met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Paul Miller, vice president, presiding in the absence of Wayne Alliston, president.

To present the program, "To Raise Standards of Home Life by Parent Education," the various educational features of the National Parent-Teacher Magazine were emphasized. Mrs. J. D. Vaughan gave some thoughts from the national president's "Thanksgiving Message," in which she pointed out that the greatest gift for which we have to be thankful is that of hope.

Mrs. Carl Smith presented excerpts from an inspirational article in which was found that the quality of our lives depends on the quality of things to which we respond. The value of the "Study Course and Outline" in each issue in producing better parents and teachers was brought out by Mrs. Charles Schultz.

Some sample "Questions on Education" were given by Mrs. Norma Perkins. Mrs. Paul Miller stressed the worthwhileness of the "Evaluation of Movies."

After the meeting coffee and cake were served in the Home Making Department.

Mrs. E. J. Dubuc of Water Valley, Miss., is spending a week with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Rene deMontfuzin Sr.

W. R. Johnson Jr., who is employed at the Merchants Bank, underwent an eye operation in Gulfport Tuesday.

REA Locally Owned and Operated

H. H. Shattuck, manager of Coast Electric, came to Bay St. Louis in mid-year 1948 and has watched the membership of the Association grow from 3300 to 5500 and has watched the use of electricity by the individual members nearly double.

Before assuming his present position, Mr. Shattuck was on the Rural Electrification Administration's staff, and last held the position of Assistant Regional Head of the Management Division. He is at present President of the Mississippi Rural Electrification Association, an organization comprised of and representing the REA systems in Mississippi.

Johnny Shattuck Observes Birthday

Johnny Shattuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Shattuck, celebrated his fourth birthday Thursday afternoon, November 13, with a party at the home of his parents on Main street.

Johnny had a number of his little friends over for the afternoon. Games were played and birthday cake and refreshments were served.

Honored on Birthdays

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baxter Jr., entertained at a get-together Sunday in honor of Mrs. J. C. Baxter Sr., and their son, Clay, on the occasion of their birthdays.

They had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Sr., of New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Baxter and children, "Lionie" and Rose, of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. John Clements of New Orleans.

Contrary to what many think, the REA Associations are completely independent businesses, with no more connection with the government than many of the leading railroads and thousands of other businesses, both large and small.

The conduct of the affairs of the Association is guided by policies as determined by a Board of Directors elected from the membership each year. Directors must be members of the Association and must be chosen so as to give equitable representation to the area served. Coast Electric's Board consists of nine directors—three from Hancock County, three from Harrison County and three from Pearl River County.

The Board selects and employs a manager. The manager is responsible to this Board—not the government. No employee of Coast Electric is a government employee. As long as Coast Electric pays the principal and interest payments on the money it has borrowed, the government exercises no more control than any other banker over businesses borrowing from his bank and whose notes are met on time.

John Sullivan Rester, who was born January 27, 1885 in Hancock County near Leefown and who serves Coast Electric in the capacity of Secretary-treasurer will give his annual report at the meeting Saturday.

Mr. Rester is one of the original directors of Coast Electric. He was elected vice-president at the time the Association was organized and served in that capacity until 1948 when he was elected secretary-treasurer.

Rester, a farmer, is fully aware and appreciative of the many advantages electricity has brought to the farm. He is one of the best known poultrymen in the area.

Each member of Coast Electric, regardless of whether they be a minimum bill consumer or a larger user, has one vote in the elections and in determining other decisions by the membership. The directors the membership elects, then represent the members for the ensuing year. Meeting monthly the Board hears reports by the manager, makes decisions on line extensions, investments, and other business of major nature.

Any and all revenue not needed for operating expense and to retire the debt, is credited to the individual members accounts in the same proportion as their patronage.

The members of Coast Electric OWN Coast Electric—the members of Coast Electric CONTROL Coast Electric—truly, it is a locally owned—locally controlled business.

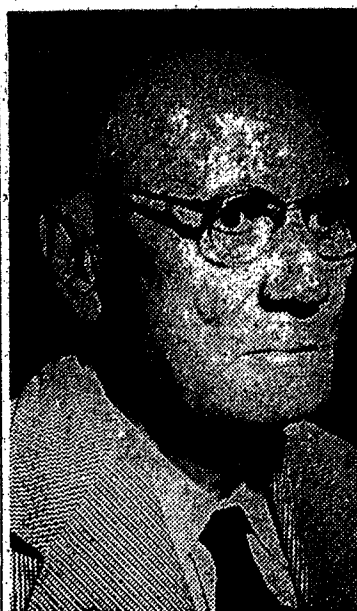

Mr. and Mrs. Henry O'Dwyer were called to New Orleans last Monday by the serious illness of his sister, Mrs. Walker Seidel, who is a patient in Mercy Hospital.

Dr. C. W. Fountain, president of Coast Electric, will preside at the Association's 1952 annual members meeting to be held Saturday, November 15.

"Doc," as he is known to Directors, members of Coast Electric's staff and friends, stated, "The members said they didn't like the ordinary meeting held last year—said they wanted a big meeting with an appliance show, with music, with prizes, so let's have one."

"Doc," now well past the 80 year mark, is still active in REA and Coast Electric activities. He serves as collection agent for the Association in the Logtown area and has not missed a board meeting in a long time.

"Doc" Fountain typifies the interest, devotion and efforts that have made the REA program such a success.

CONSTANT, COSTLY VIGILANCE BY AIRLINES IS PRICE OF PLANE PASSENGERS' SAFETY

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is another in a series of articles prepared by the State Aeronautics Commission designed to broaden the knowledge and interest of Mississippians in aviation. This month's article is guest-written by Capt. Fritz Schweinmeier, veteran pilot, now Assistant to the General Manager of Delta Airlines.

Air transportation is readily available to all Mississippians and is playing a vital role in the development of our State. In addition to the four scheduled airlines serving thirteen Mississippi cities and surrounding areas, there are located over the State a number of operators who have charter or air taxi service available to the general public. The safety records of these companies, although not notified by many people, are phenomenal. The safety records of Southern Airways, Chicago & Southern Delta and National Airlines, who serve Mississippi, have all been recognized by the National Safety Council.

When you see an airliner come into any Mississippi airport and taxi up to the administration building to unload its passengers, mail, express, and freight, have you ever wondered what went on behind the scenes?

In this article Captain Schweinmeier takes you "behind the scenes" to take a look at Delta Air Lines maintenance department, which conducts a constant vigilance to assure safe, dependable service to the traveling public. Although Captain Schweinmeier takes aboard Delta, the same standards apply to all air transportation serving Mississippi. All commercially operated planes must be maintained according to strict standards of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Into the Atlanta airport, which is the main office and base of Delta Air Lines, a regular cycle of hours comes. The Delta fliers for maintenance and overhaul work. The Maintenance Department is directly responsible for the airworthiness of the planes and engines, and it consists of many specialists whose technical skills and knowledge, plus constant research and studies, keep the flight equipment in the best possible and safest condition.

In addition to daily service checks, Delta Air Lines makes at regular intervals 75, 100, 1,250, 5,000 and 10,000 hours. These maintenance checks are numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6, and each check sheet is duplicated.

To give some idea of the complexity of these periodic checks, the items listed on the No. 1 check sheet, and 110 entries on the mechanics' sheet. The No. 6 or 10,000 hour check requires a complete overhaul of plane. Approximately 17,000 man hours are required to completely overhaul a DC-6. Are these overhauls costly? Here are a few comparative figures—DC-6 $17,000; DC-4 $34,000; DC-8 $45,000.

ENGINE OVERHAUL

After each 1,250 hours, the engine is removed and sent to the Engine Overhaul Shop. Every aircraft engine must produce its all rated horsepower on every takeoff; consequently, engines removed at 1,250 hours can still produce required horsepower. The engine is dismantled, piece by piece, then each one of the thousands of separate parts is thoroughly cleaned, and the parts are placed on several large racks. Each part then goes through a most careful inspection where it is magnified, (a method that is used to inspect metal parts for internal and external flaws) tested and checked. Any part not meeting all the rigid specifications is either repaired or replaced. An average of 800 man hours is required to completely overhaul an aircraft engine at a cost of approximately $6,000.

Stilled, mechanics are required to keep commercial aircraft in better-than-new condition.

RADIO

One very simple receiver was the only radio installed in planes during the early years of scheduled air transportation. The one radio receiver of years ago has now been supplemented with additional equipment, so that today on Delta's DC-6 we have 27 component units of radio equipment, requiring 11 antennas to properly receive and transmit radio signals. Through the advancements in radio have come increased accuracy in air navigation. Pilots are instantly posted on immediate changes of weather or landing conditions. Through the use of VHF OMNI ranges, low frequency ranges, radio beacons, and the instrument landing system, steering dependability has increased to a very high percentage.

PROPELLERS

Like engines, propellers operate on a cycle of hours. Due to the perfect balance required while a DC-6 prop is turning at 2,800 RPM and turning 2,100 horsepower in to forward thrust, special fixtures are used to check balance and the pitch and profile of each blade. Governor action, which adjusts the pitch or angle of the blade to maintain constant speed, is checked on a special test stand. So perfect is the balance of a completed job that a paper clip placed on a horizontal blade will cause the propeller to turn slowly by the weight of the clip alone until the blade is in a vertical position.

Instruments

In general, instruments are of two types: Engine performance, and plane performance and navigation. All instruments have a specific cycle of operating hours before they come in for inspection, overhaul and functional tests. The work is highly specialized, as is the test equipment necessary to determine if an instrument is 100 per cent accurate. Electronic and mechanical test units simulate flight and operating conditions while instrument readings are checked against known standards.

Inspection

This might be known as the department of final responsibility. When a plane is out on the line, ready for flight, inspection has said it is ready to go. The department, as a group, is methodical, painstaking and as precise as auditors balancing billions down to the exact penny. With its responsibility, inspection occupies an unusual position in the chain of command. Inspection reports only to top management, directly to the Vice President of Operations. It has the final authority on all safety regulations applying to aircraft and component parts.

The scheduled airlines in the United States are constantly striving to even further improve the dependability and safety of their operations. It is a must for the continued and future development of air transportation. And the industry looks forward with assurance of success with eternal vigilance as the price of safety.

A. C. MITCHELL,

PORTRAIT
"OIL MAN"

Most folks think of an "oil man" as a character in high-heeled boots and a ten-gallon hat... more of a cowboy with a coat on than a modern businessman.

Novels and movies have dramatized the "wildcat well" and "boom-town" of the bawling days when "black gold" rushed from the Earth and the Oil and Gas Industry was born.

Times have changed. The "oil man" of 1952 looks like any other businessman. His efforts are no longer those of the haphazard adventurer caught in a "boom".

Today's oil and gas business is a highly technical, highly specialized field of endeavor in which are employed the skills of thousands of workers, the capital of millions of investors, the hard-earned and dearly-bought experience accumulated over more than 50 years of operations, and every tool and technique that research and science have given man.

The Oil and Gas Industry has joined America's other major industries on the "first team" of this nation's economy.

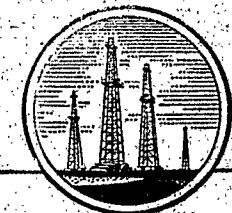

Like the many people who work at discovering, producing, processing and selling petroleum and natural gas, the industry is a good citizen. It has accepted the responsibility that go with leadership in the American Way of Life. No other industry does more to assure the conservation of this nation's natural resources. No other single group pays more in taxes.

The Oil and Gas Industry makes a gigantic contribution to the economy of every state in which it operates, as well as to the national economy. Last year, the industry's contribution to the economy of Mississippi totalled over $50 million... $10 million in county and state taxes, $15 million in wages and salaries paid to its 5000 Mississippi employees, $18 million in royalties, rentals and leases paid to Mississippi landowners and $7 million spent for supplies and services for Mississippi operations.

Yes, today's "oil man" is a valuable addition to your community. He is a wide-awake go-getter. His presence means more business for you, for where he goes employment and payrolls rise. He's civic-minded, too... he has learned what the terms "Teamwork" and "Responsibility" mean. The "oil man's" appearance, like the methods and operations of the Oil and Gas Industry, has changed with progress and the passage of the years. They have both grown up and "settled down"... and they are here to stay.

TELLS A STORY...

Every month our employee magazine contains one or more pages of pictures of telephone employees who have been promoted to management. That speaks well of employee opportunity in the telephone business.

Management jobs at Southern Bell are filled by promotions through the ranks. Last year there were 819 promotions to supervisory positions. There were also 5,834 promotions to higher non-supervisory jobs, and 615 promotions to higher management positions.

This policy of opportunity and recognition for the individual employee means good management and better telephone service for you. Coupled with good pay, fair treatment and one of industry's best employee benefit programs, it explains why more than half of the employees we had 20 years ago are still with the Company.

UNIFORM GROCERY PRICING EXTENDED TO ALL COUNTIES

The Jackson District Office of Price Stabilization announced today that uniform community pricing of many staple grocery items, together with posting of ceiling prices in stores, has been extended to all counties in the State of Mississippi.

Community pricing has been in effect in 54 counties in the state since September 29. The other 28 counties were included in the program on November 3.

Ceiling prices for more than 350 food items that Mississippi residents buy most frequently are now displayed in grocery stores throughout the state, District Director Robert W. May said.

These dollar-and-cent ceilings, main feature of the program, make it possible for customers to tell by glancing at the posters in the store what the ceilings are on such staple foods as flour, rice, coffee and lard and such standard items as butter, cereals and baby food.

These posted ceilings, Mr. May said, "will help shoppers make sure they are not paying more than ceiling prices for their daily food purchases and thus will enable them to make the most of their food money and at the same time to help fight inflation."

Price ceilings are designed to keep the peaks from rising above an established limit. If retailers want to sell below the ceiling, that is legal. But no grocer can sell above the ceilings and stay within the law.

CIGARETTES
Wholesale and retail distributors of cigarettes have been authorized to include all of the Federal excise tax as part of their cost in applying their customary markups to determine ceiling prices for cigarettes, OPS announced this week.

Effect of this section will be to raise the ceiling price for a carton of ten packs from one to three cents, depending upon the markups of the distributors.

However, OPS does not expect any increase in the price of an individual pack of cigarettes.

BROOMS EXEMPTED
Price controls have been removed from all sales of floor brooms and whisk brooms. The exemption eliminates price ceilings for manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

However, price ceilings remain in effect on other household articles, including all brushes and brooms made of synthetic filaments of vegetable fibers.

Previous exemptions had already removed price controls from sales of brooms made by institutions for the blind, penal institutions, by state agencies and by manufacturers whose gross sales did not exceed $25,000 a year.

BOAT REPAIRS
Ceiling price controls have been removed from charges for the repair and conversion of all boats and ships, according to the Office of Price Stabilization.

County Agent's Notes
By HOWARD SIMMONS

GARDENING
Garden soil needs plenty of plant food. Two to six inches of barnyard manure mixed with some mixed fertilizer on the garden now and plowed under; will make for easier working next spring.

The barnyard manure will provide organic matter and increase the water holding capacity of the soil. The commercial mixed fertilizer will supply needed plant food to make for bigger and better vegetables.

Some gardening tips timely now include controlling of plant lice on turnips, mustard and collard greens. The lice stunt plant growth by sucking the sap from the leaves.

Control these lice with a one percent, or one and one-half percent rotenone dust. One pound of this dust will control plant lice in an average size home garden.

Leaf-lettuce, kale, rape, and onions can still be planted out in the open throughout the state. In Hancock County add turnips, mustard, radish and Swiss chard to this list.

DAIRY
Now is the time to plan your milk production for next spring. If your heifers are 15 to 17 months old you should watch them closely and breed them during November, December, and January so that they will freshen up each for heavy breed birds, on next fall.

For best breeding results the heifers should be gaining in weight but not fat. It is always good to supply additional feed before the breeding season. This is especially true this year when most animals have been on short pastures.

High quality hay placed in feed bunkers in pastures will do wonders for heifers approaching breeding age. If heifers are in poor condition, feed two or three pounds of grain a day.

It is extremely important to breed heifers to the best bulls available. The service of the best bulls is available to all through artificial insemination.

Do not breed Jersey heifers under 600 pounds, Guernseys under 525 or Holsteins or Brown Swiss under 625 pounds.

POULTRY
Maintain high egg production this winter. Make sure that your hens are comfortable and well fed. Keep them warm enough. Make sure that there is enough floor space. Allow at least three and a half to four feet floor space each for heavy breed birds. Plenty of water is a must. It should be clean, fresh water. A hen's body is around 55 percent water and an egg is 75 percent water. Water is the cheapest feed available so make sure that your birds have plenty of it.

Give the hens a 13-hour day. By using lights in the poultry house, you give the birds more time to eat and drink water. This will stimulate egg production. And while it will not increase the total number of eggs laid in a year, it will increase the number laid in fall and winter when prices are higher.

Do not let chicken lice steal your egg profits. Hens heavily infested with lice do not lay as many eggs as lice-free hens. Use DDT to control lice. You can use this as a 10 percent DDT to make the spray, mix one pint of 50 percent DDT wettable powder with three gallons of water and spray directly on hens.

A lot has been purchased at the corner of St. Joseph and Jeff Davis avenue in Waveland, for the site of the Waveland Baptist church. Army barracks from the Bay St. Louis Trade School has been purchased and placed on the lot. Brother Bob McNamee, pastor of the Lakeshore and Waveland churches, has been devoting his time and efforts toward this building. Protestant women in Waveland have been working to get the church completed. Approximately $400 are needed for ceiling, siding and partitions for the Sunday school rooms, and a heating system is needed. Any contributions would be appreciated if sent to Mr. McNamee. Services are being held in Waveland at 9:30 a. m. and 8:00 p. m. and at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. in Lakeshore.

On November 6, the State Building Commission made an allocation of $12,000.00 toward the construction of the elementary school for Bay St. Louis. This allocation was made on the basis of $2,000.00 per class room. This amount of money is to be matched at an early date with funds to be secured from the State and by local contribution. Employers and Officers of the Coast Electric Power Association are not eligible for prize awards.

A pocket-book edition, "The Farmer Takes a Hand," by Marquis Childs, a story on the electric power introduction into the rural areas, will be given to members, along with other gifts, from Coast Electric.

This year, as the result of a suggestion from a member, Coast Electric will have bottle warming stations for mothers.

Featured also in the exhibit will be a model Home Study Center.
